The Republican Journal of Belfast observed its 100th anniversary last Thursday, Feb. 6, in a fitting manner. It reprinted a photo facsimile of its first issue, which is a little condensed but readable. The history of the century past is good. The whole edition is praiseworthy. It consists of 46 nicely printed pages of many pictures.

A book exchange has been established in New York for the benefit of youthless dwellers. It operates like a library. It was established by educators who believe that the chief motive crime is the desire for knowledge to play with.

Some Dunham, Quincy, Mass.: "I received some fat grapes yesterday, and that the mail clerks would then they reached you. Another editor whose birthday was on the 14th, and I am wondering if he had been an editor if I had had the tenth of February instead of the 14th. The earthquake didn't shake you much. I wonder if the people of California will refer to it as 'the cold one' as the people of California call the 'fire' when they mean 'quake'.

Walter Chandler tells of a South Paris man laid up with a stiff back from leaning over and pushing a mechanical toy duck around the floor.

Mrs. George Frost is at the Central Maine General Hospital where she has undergone an operation on her foot. Mrs. Sadie Lapham is gaining from her serious illness. Mrs. Lizzie McAllister has been spending a few days with Mrs. Freeland Young.

Malcolm Gregg is enjoying life at Coral Gables, Florida. This conclusion comes from reading a recent letter. Basking in the sun, fishing and attending racing events. He admits riding in an auto at the rate of a mile a minute, for ten minutes.

Millettville and Crockett Ridge
Addie Thurston has finished work for Carl Ross and is at her home for a few days' rest.

Fred Lovejoy, who has been confined to the house for the past six weeks, is gaining slowly. Carroll and George Greenleaf are continuing on for F. J. Lovejoy. Ned Herrick has finished work for H. M. Jackson.

Mrs. Lydia Westleigh, who is spending the winter with her son, George Westleigh, and wife, in Millettville, has her sixth rug in the frame. She makes some very beautiful hand hooked rugs and is a very smart and industrious lady at 76 years of age.

Mrs. Leslie Millett and daughter, Marion, spent the day, Wednesday, with Mrs. Millett's mother, Mrs. H. M. Jackson. "Gram" Dunham has been ill with the flu. She is boarding with Mrs. Charles Kimball, in the village.

Dorothy Millett, Lou Noble, Dorothy Richardson and Melvin White attended the matinee at Rex Theatre, to see "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

THE NATION'S TRADING CENTERS
The outstanding feature in business for 1928 was the enormous growth in business done by the country's stock exchanges. This condition would seem to be a normal result of the people of this nation taking a greater interest in industrial development.

Until recently, men and women throughout the country had an idea that a stock exchange was in the nature of a high grade gambling place down in Wall Street.

During the past few years stock exchanges have been established in the leading cities of the nation and the people have been finding out that instead of being gambling houses, one can there buy only recognized and investigated stocks which have been accepted for listing, just as one can go to a railroad ticket office and buy a ticket on any recognized line in the United States.

Stock exchanges are trading centers throughout the country. They have enabled the people to deal in securities which were formerly unknown to them. Just as railroad ticket offices have enabled the traveling public to buy tickets over many railroads at one central source, with resulting service and convenience to the people.

Stock exchanges have stabilized the buying and selling of securities just as the railroads have stabilized transportation. A purchaser who buys a railroad ticket from a "scalper" is showing poor judgment as one who buys stocks or securities from some unrecognized dealer. Brokers over the country who are members of one or more stock exchanges, are governed by drastic rules as strict as those applying to agents selling railroad tickets, and the regulations applying to our banking system.

As the public recognizes these facts, a large part of the money now lost annually through wild speculation will be saved by dealing in recognized markets and asking advice of bankers and brokers who are informed on securities offered for sale.

A TREMENDOUS INDUSTRY
With the exception of transportation, no industry is so closely intertwined with the entire social and industrial structure of the United States as is electricity. Its amazing progress and expansion in two generations has made it a basic element in our domestic and economic life.

The increased earning power of the modern worker is directly traceable to the use of power in industry, over half of which is of electrical origin. The laborer, yesterday was restricted to a horer next extent to the strength of his back and hands; the worker of today controls machines that enable him to produce many times the amount produced by his predecessor.

Mass distribution of electricity through large companies serving wide territories, makes possible the industrial expansion of small communities. Formerly only great cities could offer the power facilities necessary to industry; now, the small town has all the city advantages, coupled with its natural advantages of low taxes, plentiful labor, pleasant and uncluttered living conditions.

Another great step forward is being made in the electrification of farms. A lifetime timekeeper with our guarantee. Made of fine mahogany, 9 1/2 in. high, 17 in. wide, with an 8-day movement. The hour and half-hour are sounded on a sweet-toned Cathedral gong. Beautiful.

Opera-House Block, NORWAY, ME.

Such has been the contribution of electricity to our modern life. It is a great servant of industry and our social-economic civilization.

Public Men I Have Known

Memories of J. Hastings Bean

Article No. 13, by C. F. Whitman

I first saw J. Hastings Bean on the day of the great fire in May, 1894. I was standing on the sidewalk in front of the Grange building near the Advertiser Office, in the second story of which was the municipal court room; its furniture and my law library, watching the fire at Cummings & Sons' mill. The wind was blowing from the south east and I was fearful that it might cross the street, which, if it indicated that it would, I was prepared, with assistants, to remove my property up back of the Universalist Church, where I thought it would escape being burned. The wind changed and the fire, beyond control, swept across the stream and soon the roof of the Opera House building was all ablaze. The fire burning everything in its path, was not checked until it reached Steep Falls.

Mr. Bean came to see me about his candidacy for Register of Deeds. He had learned that I was a candidate for Clerk of the Courts and that the Norway and Paris delegates were pledged to me, but at that time I had no idea whom they favored for other candidates. Of course under those circumstances, there could be but very little chance of my being elected. I was impressed with his manly bearing, sincerity of purpose and straightforward ways, and although he came from a section whose delegates were for the other fellow, he had a certain quality while he had but one delegate from his own little town of Mason to pledge to anybody, I told him I would use my influence for him. Afterwards there were more extended conferences with him and particularly George W. Ridlon of West Paris, who was a candidate for County Commissioner. Ridlon was a better campaigner than either of us. He put into the canvass much more work and it was effective. The interest of all three of us in a way ran together, and he was our file leader. The close fellowship of us three, was never broken until Mr. Bean's death, a few years ago. All three of us were elected to the positions we sought.

The king pin of my candidacy, however, was Dr. Isaac Rounds of South Paris, who controlled the Paris delegation—the largest then in the county. And this was the reason for it. Some three years before he was up all one night to save a patient from dying, who had been heavily drinking. The doctor had got stirred up enough to have the rumseller, a Paris citizen, prosecuted. He came to me as Judge of the Municipal Court, to see what could be done about it. I told him to have the deputy sheriff make the complaint and I would issue a warrant for the arrest and trial of the rumseller. I inquired who I would suggest as a lawyer to manage the case and I answered, "Get Gene Smith." He did so. The respondent was represented at the trial by Meriton Kimball. The case was a clear one and when the evidence had been presented and the pleas made, the decision was something like this: "The evidence convinces me that the respondent is guilty," to which his counsel, interrupting, exclaimed, "We appeal."

"Wait a minute," I said, "and I'll give him something to appeal from." He was then given a jail sentence. As he was running a small place for the accommodation of travelers, and had few travelers, I had thought at first that if he promised not to violate the law any more, that he might by furnishing good bonds be put on probation. At the next term of the Supreme Judicial Court the appeal was entered but the respondent in the language of Gen. Wm. K. Kimball had "left his country for his country's good." Enoch Foster was the presiding judge at that term, and on motion of the County Attorney, Ned Walker, of Lovell, the judgment and sentence of the Municipal Court was confirmed. The respondent, getting very weary of his pilgrimage away from his home, finally came back and served his sentence in the old stone jail on Paris Hill. That case made Col.

"SHADOWS"
Shadow reflections of the moon, you vanish too soon, too suddenly I creep from out my bed, smiling at the moon far overhead.

Mystic shadows that stretch from door to door, making a weird carpet for my chamber floor, leaving far out into the night, hosts of shadows greet me left and right, drifting from the magic mystic moon.

Shadows that drift away too soon, too soon, where do shadows go? I wonder now, as I look to rest, my weary way, and as the morning breaks once more, gone are the moon shadows that carpeted my floor.

My shadow carpet has been swept away, and in its place I build from shadows of the day.

WHO MAKES A PUBLIC UTILITY GO?

The following catechism from the Boston, Massachusetts, Current Affairs, shows aptly the spirit of cooperation that governs modern industry. "Again, the question: 'Who makes a public utility go?' 'We do,' say the stockholders. 'We finance it.' 'We do,' say the management. 'Without our intelligence and foresight all the money in the world could not make it go around.' 'We do,' say the workers. 'A public utility would be unable to exist except for the sweat of our brows.' 'We do,' say the users of the service or things the public utility offers. 'If we did not patronize a public utility, it could not survive.' 'As a matter of fact, all are wrong. The public utility could not serve and prosper without the cooperation of all four groups.'"

The Electric Furnace Man

The Electric Furnace-Man is the latest development in the field of automatic heating. The Electric Furnace-Man can easily be installed in your present heating plant, whether it be steam, vapor, hot water or warm air. Cost of installation is surprisingly low. The Electric Furnace-Man uses Anthracite Coal—the smaller sizes—known as No. 1 Buckwheat and Rice, the price range of which is considerably lower than the commonly used larger sizes. The coal is automatically fed from the coal hopper to the burner, slow or fast, just as needed. The right amount of air is supplied by a fan and the ashes are automatically removed to a convenient covered can outside the furnace.

There is no nursing of fires, no shaking or raking, no adjustment of drafts and no uncertainty.

Let me tell you what the Electric Furnace-Man can do for you.

Boy Scouts' Nineteenth Anniversary

Birthday Observed During Feb. 8, Through the 14th.

The Boy Scouts of America celebrated its nineteenth anniversary on February 8. The week of February 8 through 14, was observed as Boy Scout Anniversary Week. Year by year Scouting has progressed until the Movement now has more than one hundred thousand boys, and more than two hundred thousand men enrolled. The Organization seeks to build character in boys and to train them for the duties of citizenship. Nearly four million American boys have been Scouts since 1910.

Boy Scout Anniversary Week this year was of special significance because, in addition to marking the nineteenth birthday of the Boy Scouts of America, it also marked the "coming of age" of the Boy Scout Movement internationally. With a record of twenty-one years of world-wide service, under the leadership of Sir Robert Baden Powell, Chief Scout of the world, and with forty-three nations represented in the International Scout Bureau of London, England, the Boy Scout Movement claims to be the greatest united effort in behalf of and by boys of which history hold record. At present there are more than one million eight hundred thousand Boy Scouts in the world, and the Boy Scouts of America leading in enrollment with more than eight hundred thousand.

During the nineteen years of Scouting's history in America, millions of boys have been benefited. No one can tell just how much they have benefited but there is no doubt that most of them are better men, physically, mentally and morally, than they would have been if they had not been Scouts. Through the Boy Scout Movement the desire for right living is implanted in the boy's heart. Valuable training, mental and physical, is also received, starting a Scout towards manhood with higher ideals and more practical knowledge than he would otherwise possess.

The Scout movement provides a program for the city, suburban and rural boy. Under the supervision of the Department of Rural Scouting, thousands of country boys have an opportunity to enjoy a Scouting program especially adapted to their every day needs. Thirty-six of the 88 Merit Badges in the Boy Scout Vocation Guidance program are on subjects directly pertaining to country boy activities and farming, although the boys may work for all of the 88. The good thing about the Boy Scout Movement is that it takes a boy in his own environment and lets him select from a program of wide range things that are along the lines of the vocation for which he is particularly fitted. It does not try to turn a country boy into a city boy nor a city boy into a country boy, but gives to each a distinct program and opportunity for advancement and reinforcement in connection with his own home and the business of his family.

Scouting builds into a boy's character strong fibres of character. It makes him staunch of heart and strong of mind. It has proven itself to be a builder of true manhood. The Movement is well supported by every community.

To an unknown English Boy Scout who volunteered to guide William D. Boyce, the Chicago Publisher, when he was lost in a London fog in 1909, goes the credit for giving to the movement the distinction which brought the Boy Scout Movement to the United States in 1910. Guiding the publisher to his destination, despite a heavy London fog, and then returning pay for his services, explaining to Mr. Boyce that he was a Scout, the training of the lad so interested the American that he visited the office of the founder of British Scouting, and familiarized himself with the Movement as conducted by Sir Robert Baden Powell.

On the night of February 8th, hundreds of thousands of boys, following the annual Scouting custom, rode out to the fields and woods to the ideals and objectives of the Scout Oath and Law. There was a Scout program on every day of Anniversary Week, and the Boy Scout Movement is really a world-wide brotherhood of boys, binding boys together by the bonds of fellowship and binding nations together by the boys.

The Boy Scout Movement is a great force for a world peace. Forty-three nations are represented in the International Scout Bureau of London, England. Every Scout considers every other Scout a brother. Each Scout lives up to the same Oath and Law. The Boy Scout Movement is really a world-wide brotherhood of boys, binding boys together by the bonds of fellowship and binding nations together by the boys.

The Boy Scout Law says, "A Scout is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent." When taking the Scout Oath the 1,800,000 Boy Scouts throughout the world say in principle: "On my honor I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country, to obey the Scout Law, to help other people at all times, and to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

James E. West, Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America, said that the Boy Scout Movement does not pretend to take the place of either the home, church, or the school, although it supplements the work of them all. Its purpose is to help parents by imparting to boys the many ethics of Scouting. It seeks to help boys to help themselves to gain physical, mental and moral training. Every Boy Scout takes a pledge to help others. He has taken his motto "Be Prepared." The Boy Scout is given an education in camps which could not be given in the classroom. The Scout Movement is an effort to start the children between the ages of 12 and 18 in the right direction and the wonder of it all is that the Movement functions under volunteer leadership.

The contribution of Boy Scouts to community service each year, is almost incalculable. Their heroic work in the Florida disaster of last year and in the four great disasters of 1927, the Mississippi and New England floods, the St. Louis tornado and the Pittsburgh explosion, was in itself a great service to the nation, but even greater than that service is the service that Scouts render every day. Trained to be prepared in any emergency the records of the Boy Scouts of America, show that last year, more than one hundred thousand Scouts were trained in first aid, and the records of the Scouts in reforestation projects, clean-up campaigns, safety and health campaigns, and their campaigns against harmful insects and rodents, have won national acclaim.
